

BOOK LAUNCH PARTY

for

The Wife of the Left Hand poems by Nancy Kuhl

Published by Shearsman Books

Friday, February 2, 8pm

at the
Art + Literature Laboratory
Erector Square, Building 2
319 Peck Street, New Haven

for directions visit:

<http://www.allgallery.org/information.html>

About The Wife of the Left Hand

An amazing, subtle demonstration of the ways in which domestic containment rubs up against the chaotic rhythms of human desire. . . . One feels here some of Emily Dickinson's swift reckonings with extremity, some of Plath's ruptured affect, tempered by the cool detachment of post-feminist critique. Kuhl is a master precisionist of intimate betrayal; she strikes the most profound chord: "The body, no good house, wants what it / wants; does not listen." — Ann Lauterbach

Can't Make It?

Labyrinth Books on York Street, New Haven, will host a reception, book-signing, and reading to celebrate the publication of The Wife of the Left Hand on Wednesday, March 7, at 5:30pm.

The Wife of the Left Hand can be ordered on line at www.amazon.com & www.spdbooks.org

For more information about & examples of my work visit:
www.phylumpress.com/nancykuhl.htm