

FORUM ON RELIGION & LITERATURE

Presented by Yale Institute of Sacred Music ism.yale.edu

Fall Semester:

Thursday, November 20, 4-5:30

Linsly-Chittendon Hall (LC)

Room 319

Thinking with the Psalms: The Case of the Miserere in Early Modern England

Presented by Clare King'oo

Associate Professor of English

University of Connecticut

Spring Semester:

Thursday, February 26, 4-5:30

Linsly-Chittendon Hall (LC)

Room 319

Toward a Jewish Poetics?

Presented by Peter Cole

Poet, Senior Lecturer

Yale Judaic Studies Program/

Dept. of Comparative Literature

For more info: david.mahan@yale.edu

Please RSVP to ismevents@yale.edu or to David Mahan directly.

An abstract and other relevant material will be provided in advance of each session.

The 'turn to religion' in literary studies has prompted a resurgence of academic work in this area. Only rarely, however, do scholars of literature and religion talk with each other. This forum aims to provide such a conversation. Together with faculty and students from across the Yale campus, we will explore the interface of religion and literature in both its contemporary and historic manifestations. Meeting once per semester, each session will feature original scholarship by a presenter who will facilitate discussion of his or her own work.